ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of using a supervision client based on an OPC protocol to supervise and control a transport network including a data server based on an SNMP protocol consists of connecting the supervision client to a gateway for providing a connection between the data server and the supervision client using a description of the data of the data server from a management information base.

5